

Environmental, Health, & Safety (EHS) Policy

Carestream Health is committed to conducting business in a manner that preserves the environment and protects the health and safety of its employees, neighbors, and customers. Carestream follows a set of "ē-co-pride" principles where:

ē represents the environmental and the employee health and safety considerations, co represents the compliance and the cost expectations, and pride represents how Carestream promises to embrace, integrate, and demonstrate its obligations.

This is achieved by managing risk to continuously improve the health and safety of employees including care for the environment by achieving the effectiveness of the EHS management system.

"ē-co-pride" principles:

ē:

Environmental preservation – Carestream is committed to promoting life-cycle thinking as a means of creating practical solutions and establishing regulatory requirements that support product commercialization and manufacturing.

Employee health and safety – Carestream is committed to creating a workplace that protects its employees and strives for zero injuries.

Compliance expectation – Carestream is committed to working with suppliers and development teams to provide products that follow company standards and comply with applicable laws and regulatory requirements. Carestream manages its sites to ensure compliance with local and national laws. Carestream continually evaluates ways to minimize environmental risks and improve its environmental profile beyond compliance limits wherever feasible.

Cost-effective solutions – Carestream is committed to applying innovative solutions to reduce and eliminate waste from operations, prevent capital loss, and maintain an efficient EHS management program.

Embrace – Carestream embraces a culture where employees are proud of the company's decisions, ethical behavior, and progress.

Integrate – Carestream integrates EHS initiatives seamlessly with business goals and objectives consistent with EHS Policy and corporate values.

Demonstrate - Carestream demonstrates management commitment by measuring and reporting on performance and focusing on continuous improvement.
